*Letter from the BPPA President
May 30, 2009*

My congratulations to the BPPA contest winners. In a region of the country that has produced some of world's best photojournalists, this year's award recipients continue to demonstrate the excellence and quality in their prize winning photographs.

On behalf of the BPPA I would like to express our gratitude to our sponsors and advertisers. Throughout this book you will see their names. These organizations and companies sustain BPPA, please support them.

I want to convey my gratitude to the officers and board of directors for all their hard work. Our Chairman of the Board, Bob Howard does the work of at least 10 people. Countless hours have been put in by Michael Maloney, Marlene Karas, Jim Mahoney, Neal Hamberg, Mark Garfinkel and Charlie Krupa, along with Stephan Savoia, Mo Tate and Richard Chase. Without the hard work of these people BPPA would cease to exist. In a time of rapid change in our industry, with everyone having to work much harder, the time these people donate to BPPA is even more impressive.

This year's judges were Andrea Mohin of the New York Times, Lucien Perkins of the Washington Post and Sir Colin Finlay, who spent hours on each category. We express our gratitude to them for taking the time to come to Boston and judge. My thanks to Marlene Karas and Michael Maloney for all the hours and days spent on chairing this year's contest.

BPPA has had several positive things take place in the past year. Last year's winning photographs are hanging in a show at Logan Airport. Some of the winning images from this year will replace the photographs presently on display at Logan. We are also working on a permanent exhibit at Logan Airport titled "Welcome to New England."

This year for the first this entire book will be posted on the website. My thanks to Jeff Mayes for creating our new web site and keeping it up to date. Neal Hamberg has created a new e-BPPA News Jim Mahoney organized and hosted our first multimedia workshop which was a great success. Thanks to the Museum of Fine Art for hosting one our meetings and inviting us to be their guests for the Josef Karsh exhibit.

Bob Howard, Neal Hamberg and myself have had meetings with The Massachusetts State Police, the Transit Police and I have met with Commissioner Ed Davis of the Boston Police. I am pleased to say we have a good working relationship with each department.

My congratulations to Commissioner Davis on receiving the Bob Howard Good Fellowship award, Jeff Twiss of the Boston Celtics, our Sports Personality of the Year and Joe Wrinn of Harvard News Office, our "Appreciation Award" winner. These people are a great help to us in doing our jobs. We know we can reach out to them when we need to.

As things continue to change rapidly in our world and our profession there will always be a need for great still photographs. Where and how we publish our work may change, but nothing else has the impact of a brilliant still photograph. No one can take away our creativity and desire to tell the story one frame at a time. My wishes for you in the upcoming year are of one of prosperity and creativity and in this time of change and remember YES WE CAN!!!!

Edward Davis Police Commissioner

Police Commissioner Edward Davis took the reins of the Boston Police Department in late 2006, when the city was still grappling with a decade high murder rate. In the three years since Davis took command, homicides have gone down every year. No less important, through his community policing efforts, car thefts, breaking and enterings robberies, and larcenies have also dipped significantly. A veteran police officer, Davis worked his way through the ranks in the Lowell Police Department, where he was a patrolman, a narcotics detective, and finally, Chief of Police, when Mayor Thomas Menino named him Commissioner of the Boston Police Department. Commissioner Davis understands our job and is a pleasure to work with.

Awarded to that person or persons who; busy though they may be, take time, consideration and cooperation in helping our assignments to be more interesting and newsworthy.

Jeff Twiss Boston Celtics

Jeff Twiss as vice president of media relations is unquestionably loyal to his employer, the Celtics, and still manages to convey the impression that he works for the media members who come to him with problems both great and small. That's because he truly cares about others and the jobs they have to do. He respects photographers and writers and broadcasters and he believes that they and those with the team can all do their jobs with class and dignity. We believe this makes him the perfect recipient for this honor.

Awarded to that person or persons who; busy though they may be, take time, consideration and cooperation in helping our assignments to be more interesting and newsworthy.

"Change"

1. Democratic presidential candidate US Senator Hillary Clinton (D-NY) and supporters are reflected in the glasses of Reverend Cecil Williams at a fund raiser at the Orpheum Theater in San Francisco, California February 2, 2008. 2. Supporters hold signs as Democratic presidential nominee U.S. Senator Barack Obama (D-IL) speaks at the 2008 Democratic National Convention in Denver, Colorado August 28, 2008. The 2008 presidential campaign brought many changes, firsts and lasts; among them the first time in 16 years without a Bush or a Clinton in the White House, the first viable female candidate, the likely final campaign for Senator McCain, and finally the election of the first African-American US President. 3. Chelsea Clinton (L) and her father, former U.S. president Bill Clinton, listen as Democratic presidential candidate U.S. Senator Hillary Clinton (D-NY) speaks at her New Hampshire primary night rally in Manchester January 8, 2008. 4. Police officers and a police dog watch over supporters of U.S. Democratic presidential nominee Barack Obama outside a campaign stop by U.S. Republican presidential nominee Senator John McCain (R-AZ) in Sandusky, Ohio October 30, 2008. Senator McCain is on a two day, campaign bus tour through the state of Ohio.

5. U.S. first lady Laura Bush (L) walks offstage as U.S. President George W. Bush appears live via satellite from the White House in Washington during the second session of the 2008 Republican National Convention in St. Paul, Minnesota, September 2, 2008. 6. U.S. Republican presidential nominee Senator John McCain (R-AZ) (C) waits to board his motorcade upon arriving in Newark, New Jersey November 1, 2008. 7. US Democratic presidential candidate Senator Barack Obama (D-IL) (R) and his running mate Sen. Joe Biden (D-DE), acknowledge supporters as former Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-NY) is pictured on a monitor above them, at the 2008 Democratic National Convention in Denver, Colorado, August 27, 2008. Democrats nominated Senator Barack Obama (D-IL) on Wednesday as their presidential candidate in a historic first for a black American, sending him into battle against Republican John McCain.

Truly breakthrough photographs require a truly breakthrough camera. The Canon EOS 50D, a leap forward in photographic innovation, the EOS 50D features an APS-C-sized 15.1-megapixel CMOS sensor for huge images, a DIGIC 4 Image Processor for staggering detail and color reproduction, and ISO capabilities up to 12800, to go along with improved noise reduction. So if you're looking to take your photography to the next breathtaking level, to create photographs as inspiring as this shot by Canon Explorer of Light Tyler Stableford, the EOS 50D is the place to start.

WHO Project

Throughout the world there are very few countries making leading efforts to help patients fight and properly treat MDR-TB (multiple drug resistance TB) and XDR-TB (extensively drug resistant TB). The challenges in many countries are dealing with lack of infrastructure, poverty and lack of funding. In 2005, 112,000 people died from MDR-TB and over 420,000 people were infected worldwide. The number of people who died from regular TB in 2006 was 1.7 million. The funding gap to treat TB patients was $1 billion dollars. Over 40 countries have XDR-TB within their borders. These highly contagious germs can be spread from person to person and can be transmitted like any common cold. This essay is a window into the global challenges through the eyes of patients in the countries of Lesotho and the Philippines and how they are facing these health issues.

Edwin T. Ramsdell Memorial Trophy

In memory of Edwin T. Ramsdell, a Boston Post photographer, who was killed while photographing the ocean liner Queen Mary from the air. Ramsdell and other photojournalists were aboard a plane which crossed the stern of the liner as she was making her way to port. The plane suddenly went out of control and crashed in the ocean. The other passengers aboard the plane were badly shaken up but rescued by a passing freighter.

Moe Fineberg Award

Morris "Moe" Fineberg dedicated his life to capturing the graphic news events of the day on film. Moe Fineberg was killed at the age of 56, on assignment for the Boston Post.

On September 30, 1949 he was assigned to cover the mock U.S. Marine and U.S. Navy ship to shore invasion landing at Carson Beach in South Boston. Suddenly the event took on the stark grim reality of war itself as Moe fell, mortally wounded, on the sandy beach. He was killed by a pyrotechnic projection shell that exploded prematurely in the barrel of the projector.

Jim Callaghan, a Boston Globe photographer, standing only a few feet away at the time of the explosion, said, "Moe died clutching his camera in one hand and a plate holder in the other."

[The Moe Fineberg Award is given to the first place recipient of the feature category in the still photography division.]

Some of us have known Joe Wrinn as a diligent UPI stringer.

Some of us have know him as that always moving Harvard photographer.

Some of us have known Joe as the spokesman for "the university."

Some of us just know him as that guy who gets us into the Hasty Pudding Awards.

Through all these phases, he has just been Joe.

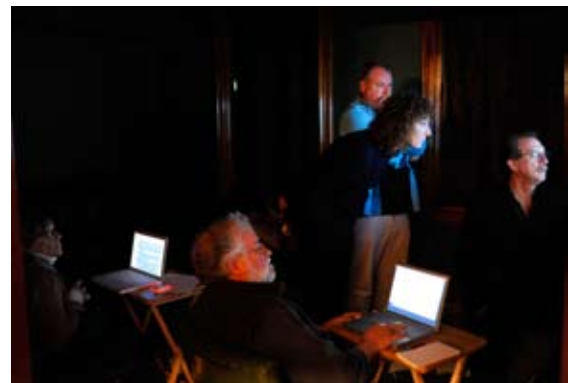

Always gracious, always ready to help out a fellow photographer.

And we appreciate that.

Thank You Judges – We couldn't win without you
